Comparing SRS of other groups

Wouter Van Rossem

November 28, 2009

1 Group 1

- Extra user classes: help desk staff, moderators, deactive member

- Deactive members are members that have not yet confirmed their account yet. They can modify their account information and request a new confirmation mail.

- Users need to confirm their account before they can become active members. This is done through a confirmation e-mail.

- Users have to pay a fee when they want extra's for an auction

    - Labels
    - Pictures
    - Item is placed higher a list when searching
    - Item is in a special color in a list when searching

- There is a withdrawal cost for credits

- Users have the ability to translate an item description with google translate

- Users have the ability to remove their account

- Users can cancel their bid if there is at least twelve hours remaining before the auction ends

- An item can be marked as sent or received

- "I'm feeling lucky" returns a random list of auctions

- Differences regarding the document structure

    - Extensive product functions
    - Use cases have some extra information: exceptional paths, alternative paths, trigger, postcondition
    - Document resembles SRS of group 1 of 2005-2006

2   Group 2

- Fees for placing an auction are determined exactly

- Just as with group 1, an account needs to be validated

- IP addresses are kept in case of fraud

- Money is sent to an administrator, who will give credits to the user

- Requirement for "Buy Now"

- Ability to mark item as sent or received

- Items per page are determined